

Burke innocent on all counts

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Commissioner of Public Property Jim G. Burke was found innocent of six counts of absentee vote solicitation by a Lee County jury following one hour and 20 minutes deliberation.

The verdict was returned at 4:50 p.m. Thursday in the courtroom of Circuit Judge James Vincent, Galena.

A smile and sighs of relief poured forth from Burke and well-wishers packed into the courtroom as Circuit Clerk Harold Huffman read the verdicts contained on each of six counts.

Burke had been accused of soliciting absentees in the days prior to the April 15 city election. "I feel like I just had two tons removed from my shoulder," he commented after the verdict was read.

In final arguments Thursday afternoon, Atty. Henry Dixon called on jurors to "put this case into perspective—I don't see the master criminal here—I submit the pieces don't add up to a criminal scheme."

Dixon was referring to opening statements in which Atty. General lawyer Brian David said the state's case would come out like a jigsaw puzzle "separate pieces of evidence may not seem to make much sense . . . until they are put together," David told jurors.

"I submit the pieces don't add up to a criminal scheme," said Dixon. "I think they opened up the box the puzzle came in and found one or two pieces of a 200-piece puzzle."

Dixon submitted: "Nothing was done by Mr. Burke to conceal his handwriting on the applications."

Burke, 37, 317 Steele Ave., testified he obtained approximately 20 absentee ballots during a door-to-door campaign. Referring to Burke's visit at the home of Virgil Grace, Dixon asked the question "Why didn't he slip that second application to Mrs. Grace . . . she was home—he saw her . . . think to yourself. Is being a city councilman worth selling your soul for . . . they tried to make a vote fraud out of these occurrences."

Atty. General lawyer Charles Levad told jurors much of the evidence in the case is circumstantial. Referring to testimony from voters, named in the indictment as witnesses to the solicitation charge, Levad said "they had no ax to grind—some of them were friends of Burke—you heard them testify to that."

Discussing 212 absentee ballots handled by Burke or his campaign workers, Levad charged there was "an organized measure to regain his election."

Levad attempted to show what he termed "a common scheme" in obtaining the absentees. "He did not explain the requirements to vote absentee—the voters signed applications without reading them—in every case the voters testified they did not expect to be out of town and they were not out of town. He says it's not his responsibility. He closed his eyes," Levad told jurors. "and as long as I keep my eyes closed it's not a crime Burke told himself."

David, in rebuttal arguments suggested "an assembly line process was underway to get absentee ballots out."

Trials remain pending for Herb Dunphy, 711 Peoria Ave., and Alice Dempsey, 1119 W. Second St. Both were campaign workers for Burke and are accused of similar offenses. Levad and David would not say whether those cases would go to trial or be dismissed.

A motion to dismiss solicitation charges against Dunphy was filed at noontime today in the Circuit Clerk's office. Dunphy is additionally charged with unlawful observation of voting.

Reacting to the verdict, Levad said "We presented the facts we had—the decision was the jury's."

Meeting with reporters, Burke said he was apprehensive until the jury came back. "I'm not vindictive—there will be no lawsuits filed and no revenge." The Dixon real estate broker said he did not know what bearing the verdict would have on the other cases but he predicted similar outcomes. "I think if I was a member of the attorney general's office and was furnished information from the state's attorney I would feel a responsibility to conduct an investigation," he said.

Fighting tapers off in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Occasional rocket, mortar and machine gun fire marred the new cease-fire in the Lebanese civil war during the night, but an army spokesman reported a 75 per cent de-escalation on all battle fronts today.

As the fighting tapered off, hundreds of armed hooligans broke into shops and homes in Beirut and stole more than $2 million worth of goods, officials estimated.

Official spokesman said the Syrian government, the author of the military-political peace plan which all the warring factions accepted Thursday, assured President Suleiman Frangieh that the Palestinian guerrillas who crossed into Lebanon from Syria to help the leftist Moslem Lebanese against the right-wing Christian fighters would be withdrawn soon.

Officials estimated that there were about 2,000 Palestinians to be withdrawn.

"Syria also pledged to crack down ruthlessly on any attempt to undermine the cease-fire or the new national charter that is to regulate peaceful coexistence between Moslems and Christians," one informed official reported.

"The Syrians mean business. They want the war over once and for all and are prepared to go to any extremes to see that no one, including the guerrillas, dissents."

But so many previous cease-fires ended in a resumption of fighting that foreign observers had their doubts about this one. The chairman of Al Ahram, the semi-official Cairo newspaper, predicted that the truce would not hold for long. Other Cairo papers said the Moslems and Christians would use the cease-fire to bury their dead and rearm.

A spokesman for the U.S. State Department in Washington said his government would be encouraged if the peace plan succeeded.

The agreement negotiated by a three-man Syrian delegation headed by Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam calls for the return of all persons to the homes and properties they had before the civil war started in April, the retreat of all fighting forces to their camps and bases, a new constitution reducing the dominant power of the Christian minority and increasing that of the Moslem majority to equalize them and machinery to improve the economic lot of the Moslems.

The Syrian delegation scheduled a series of meetings with Lebanese government and army leaders today.

Sanford bows out

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, citing the difficulties of raising funds and the "ordeal of running a campaign," today withdrew from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Sanford, 58, was the first of 11 announced candidates for the Democratic nomination to drop from the race. He had been running last in public opinion polls.

Sanford, currently on leave as president of Duke University, said he would discontinue his campaign efforts in New Hampshire and Massachusetts and not enter North Carolina's March 23 presidential primary.

Sanford, who was hospitalized Jan. 11 in Massachusetts after suffering chest pains at a campaign appearance, said his health had nothing to do with his decision to withdraw.

Sanford said he had concluded that he could not put together a winning presidential campaign and added that he was not interested in any other political position.

He said he had made an honest effort to seek the presidency, had no regrets about it and would now return to his duties at Duke University.

Sanford's withdrawal throws open North Carolina's March 23 presidential primary. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter are already entered, but several other Democratic candidates expressed interest today in seeking the state's 61 delegates to next summer's Democratic national convention.

Lives and dies in filth, but leaves $1.5 million

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) —

An 87-year-old man refused to bathe or change clothes and died surrounded by old newspapers and covered with cockroaches. But he left an estate worth at least $1.5 million, police say.

"It's a tragedy. The man could have lived so well," said Detective Sgt. Emery Zerick. "He could have had the nicest place in Miami Beach on just the interest."

Police found David Gelgor dead Wednesday in his retirement hotel in a room containing no money, television or radio. There were stacks of old papers, the lingering smell of urine and excrement, stocks, bonds and bank statements.

"I added some of them up to $1 million myself," Zerick said. Some of Gelgor's old friends told police he once owned a lavish estate in New York 25 years ago and sold it.

Included among Gelgor's papers was a 1965 will leaving bequests of $50 and $100 to cousins, nieces and nephews and $300 to a friend in New York. The rest of the fortune was left to organizations and schools in Israel. A New York accountant was named administrator.

One of the documents in the rubble was a diploma indicating Gelgor held a doctorate in engineering. But there was no immediate explanation as to how Gelgor made his fortune. Alma Siegel, who managed the Miami Beach retirement home where Gelgor lived for eight years, said no one had ever come to the home to ask about Gelgor or his health.

She said she was embarrassed and upset when police discovered the condition of his room.

One day recently Gelgor fell in his room four times and refused to call a doctor, she said.

"He would stand and watch people eat candy or ice cream and never buy any for himself," Mrs. Siegel said.

"There were maggots on his body, in the hair on his chest, but he refused to bathe. One woman offered to help him bathe—for nothing—and he refused. People couldn't stand him in the dining room or lobby."

"Sometimes I'd come to the hotel at night and he'd be sitting alone, shivering in the lobby."

Seminoles get $16 million

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — The Seminole Indians, forced off their tribal lands by U.S. troops more than 100 years ago and pressing their claims ever since, have agreed to sell Florida.

About 300 members of the tribe voted overwhelmingly Thursday to accept $16 million from the federal government as compensation to the 4,000 to 12,000 modern-day Seminoles for 32 million acres of land covering nearly the entire peninsula.

The Seminoles originally sought $47 million for about 40 million acres, and Chief Howard Tommie said the final offer was "nowhere near what the land is worth."

"But if we try to press it and the mood of the government changes, we could be left with a dime. Our lawyers say this is the best we can do. Who has another 25 years to fight?"

The offer, accepted after myriad legal battles since 1949, amounts to about 50 cents an acre for land that includes Miami Beach, Disney World and Cape Canaveral.

The land was seized by Gen. Andrew Jackson during the Seminole Wars of 1823 and 1832 and under the Indian Removal Act of 1840. Appraisers said the land was then worth three cents to $2.50 an acre.

The federal government earlier rejected Seminole claims to land above the Old Spanish Road between St. Augustine and Pensacola and other areas covered by old Spanish land grants.

Only eight votes were cast against the final settlement at the packed meeting Thursday night conducted in three languages — Miccosukee, the Seminole language; Creek, a related language some Seminoles speak; and English.

Tommie warned that it could be years before tribal members get their money.

Kissinger tells NATO

Soviets offer new ideas on arms treaty

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger ended talks with Soviet leaders today and flew here to tell North Atlantic leaders that the Soviets have put forward "some significant and constructive new ideas" for a nuclear weapons treaty.

The package deal taking shape would reduce by about 10 per cent the strategic bombers and missiles allowed to either side. It would also provide a compromise on the two principal difficulties — Soviet Backfire bombers and American cruise missiles.

U.S. officials said that, while "a hell of a lot of work remains to be done," if all goes smoothly Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev could be in Washington as early as May to sign the new treaty with President Ford.

Kissinger evidently was much less successful in his Kremlin talks on Angola. He reminded Brezhnev that Soviet support for a Marxist faction in the African civil war was undercutting détente in the eyes of the American people. But Kissinger made no apparent headway.

The secretary of state said that a report by newsman John Scali, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, that Kissinger might resign because he couldn't persuade the Soviets to end their support of the Popular Movement (MPLA) in Angola was "ridiculous."

Despite the absence of a breakthrough in nuclear weapons negotiations, Kissinger and his top aides laid claim to "significant progress." Reporters were told at least two issues were essentially resolved — the definition of light and heavy missiles and how to deal with American cruise missiles launched from the air.

In Moscow, Gromyko also told reporters there was "movement forward on several matters."

At the airport before leaving Moscow, Kissinger said, "We settled some important issues which will be passed on to (the nuclear treaty negotiators at Geneva). We made good progress on other issues."

Specific measurements of both the size and the force of missiles will be established by agreement in order to avoid charges of treaty violations. U.S. officials acknowledged that a unilateral American definition under the 1972 interim agreement was ambiguous.

Bombers carrying long-range cruise missiles would count against the over-all U.S. total but short-range cruise missiles would not count.

Other issues that stand in the way of completing a treaty remain unresolved. "Another round or two" of talks between Kissinger and Brezhnev in Moscow may be necessary, a senior U.S. official said.

Under a 1974 understanding between Ford and Brezhnev, the two superpowers were to be limited to 2,400 strategic delivery vehicles each. For the past 14 months negotiations have stalled on how, or whether, to count the Soviet Backfire bombers and American cruise missiles against these totals.

The compromise now forming would lower the ceiling to about 2,150 while the Soviets would be permitted to have some 250 Backfires in addition to that total, provided they would not station them within striking distance of American population centers.

The Soviets are said to have 2,600 strategic nuclear weapons now and the United States some 2,200. Lowering of the ceiling would have the effect of reducing Russian

Supreme Court agrees to review death penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's decision to review the death penalty will focus on five states whose laws are considered typical of all 35 states that provide for capital punishment.

The court announced Thursday it will hear arguments March 30 and 31 on behalf of persons condemned to die for murder in Georgia, Texas, North Carolina, Florida and Louisiana. It is expected to rule by the end of June.

According to a Jan. 2 compilation by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, 404 men and seven women were on death row in 30 of the 35 states.

The laws of the five states represent the varying legal routes which state legislatures have taken in efforts to surmount the Supreme Court's 1972 ruling striking down death penalty laws then in force.

At that time, the high court said the existing laws gave judges and juries too much power to select those who should die.

About half the new laws make the death penalty mandatory for specified crimes. North Carolina requires it for first-degree murder and sometimes for rape, Louisiana for certain categories of murder and aggravated rape.

The rest of the states leave the decision in the hands of a judge or jury but spell out guidelines usually in the form of aggravating or mitigating circumstances, which must be considered.

Both Georgia and Florida provide for separate trials on the question of guilt or innocence and the question of the penalty. In Georgia, the penalty may be decided either by the jury which originally heard the case or by another one.

In Florida, the judge decides after receiving an advisory verdict from a jury. Death is permitted for first-degree murder and for rape of a child under 11.

Texas combines the two systems, making the penalty mandatory in certain classes of murder if a jury finds that the killing was deliberate and was not a reasonable response to provocation and that the defendant is a threat to society.

The March hearing will be the second time in less than a year that the court has heard arguments on the death penalty. Last April, it heard the appeal of a North Carolina convict, Jesse Fowler, but put off a decision.

Fowler had not been sentenced under the new North Carolina law, but under a ruling of the state supreme court resurrecting a previous mandatory death penalty measure. Thursday's order did not say whether the court still plans to hear rearguments in Fowler's case, as it indicated last June.

Britain's Golden Age under Queen Victoria

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

On Jan. 23, 1901, Britain's Queen Victoria died, age 82. At 18 she received a crown that had been tarnished by ineptitude and she wore it with honor for 63 years in what was by four years the longest reign and by three days the longest royal life, in British history.

Queen Victoria has been persistently overwritten and elevated in stylized fiction and drama. The Queen—and Prince Albert and Benjamin Disraeli (the Earl of Beaconsfield)—have had a better press than performance justified. All three are the products of what Max Muller used to call "the migration of fables."

Albert was the nephew of Leopold I, first King of the Belgians, a Coburg prince, and it was Leopold who arranged the marriage. It was intensely controversial and went over with the British people like an iron balloon.

Albert sat among the Buckingham Palace portraits gazing down from the calm eternity of their golden frames, but his salt came entirely from the Queen's table. And he had an unfortunate personality; quite a "mixed bag," as the British say.

He had a soul, some insisted, was made of Spanish steel, a Norwegian gravity, loved Italian spaghetti, rolled his "r" nasally from the back of his throat like a Frenchman, dressed like an Englishman and had a German noble's impenetrable habit of barking when he wanted to be imposing. His tone changed like the snap of a trap. But Victoria loved him.

Disraeli, in turn, was a blatant toady. He had small, dancing eyes kingfisher blue and as cold as Alpine lakes. Like a careless jockey, he had a tendency to become unstruck at the turns and soar off into the spectators.

Any British banker would have been insane not to have loaned Disraeli the $18 million he paid Egyptian Khediv Ismail for the controlling shares in the Suez Canal, shortening the old way around Africa by 6,000 miles. And although Disraeli also crowned Victoria "Empress of India" it was the great Baron Robert Clive Clive who founded British India.

Victoria's Lords Palmerston and Clarendon, not Disraeli, made the British Foreign Office and left it at its greatest. It has been gradually declining ever since. But Disraeli was wise as well as sycophantic, did have the imagination to try the untried, and his contemporaries were unfair when they regarded him merely as a jingle man with his head stuffed full of coins.

Actually, the Queen's true favorite Minister was not Disraeli. It was Lord Salisbury. He was the English gentleman personified—a Cecil who had behind him the stability of long belonging on top. Along with the Queen he regarded himself not as responsible to the people but as responsible for them.

Above conventions Salisbury went so far as to refuse as Prime Minister to live in Downing Street. And Salisbury's prestige with Victoria was unparalleled; he was, in audience, the only Minister that Victoria ever invited to sit down.

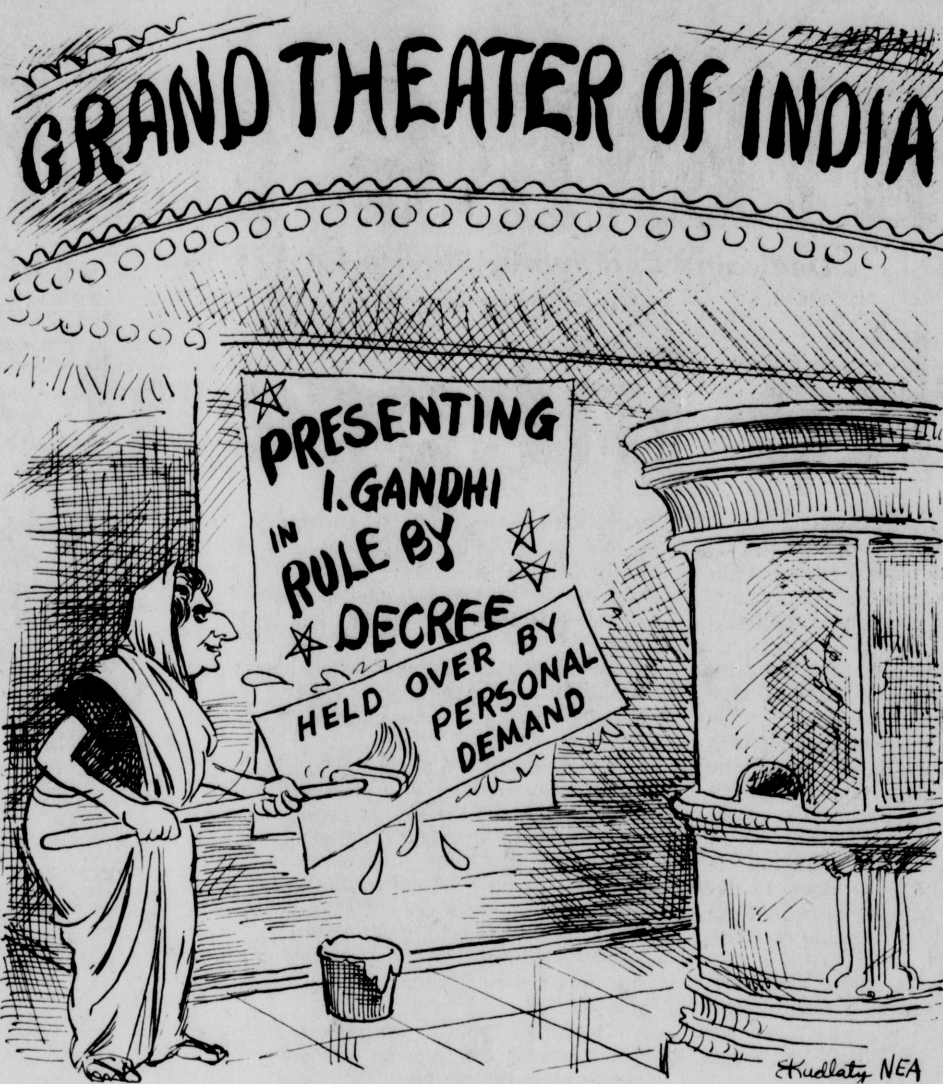

In the fourth year of Victoria's reign, Britain acquired Hong Kong from Emperor Tao Kuang on Jan. 20, 1841, by the Treaty of Chuenpi. Few Far East seaports were secure. Hong Kong was Britain's crowning jewel among them. And by June 22, 1897, Victoria's sovereignty extended across a quarter of the entire land surface of the world.

The living evidence of this marched in splendid ranks to the thanksgiving service in St. Paul's that inaugurated Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee.

The Empire never seemed so great, nor the future so secure, as on that sun-showered day. But as often happens when an institution seems at its highest force, actually the process of decay has already set in. As is easy to see now, Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee belonged to the twilight, not the noon-tide, of British security.

Who would have dreamed at that moment that the Britain that could then do so much would be the Britain which today can do so little?

Surely there is a lesson here for the United States, the No. 1 power in the world.

The real Gerald Ford?

President Ford came up with plenty of egg on his face because of his ill-advised decision not to meet with Alexander Solzhenitsyn when the dissident Russian writer first came to this country. The later extension of an open White House invitation to Solzhenitsyn, which the Nobel laureate turned down, did little to repair the damage.

But if it is meet and proper to chastise the President, as a raft of commentators did, when he makes a stinkeroo of a blunder, it is just as mandatory to praise him when he puts aside affairs of state and "considerations of policy" and does the decent, human thing.

This he did in the case of the family of Dr. Frank Olson, a government scientist who, it has recently been revealed, was administered LSD without his knowledge by the CIA back in 1953 when the agency was testing the effects of this and other hallucinogenic drugs on human guinea pigs. As a consequence of the dosage, Olson "mysteriously" committed suicide.

All this happened 23 years ago, when Gerald Ford was a little-known congressman from Michigan. Nevertheless, as President of the United States, he invited the Olsons to the White House, where he personally apologized to them on behalf of the government and promised to make available to them all information on the case and to ask the attorney general to discuss a financial settlement with their legal representatives.

"You can't conceive of how moving it was to hear him say how outraged he was at this travesty of American history," said a son, Nils Olson, after the meeting with the President. "We were all very much amazed at how genuine and sincere he was at extending his sympathy and concern."

This, we believe, was the real Gerald Ford, not the Ford of the unfortunate Solzhenitsyn affair.

Labor office has little good effect

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The situation within the Department of Labor makes clear one reason the Ford administration has not developed workable policies to deal with unemployment.

The department's methods were obsolete 30 years ago. They are worse today, complicated by infighting. Its policy making studies are dominated by men with an academic view of the workingman and his problems, and little practical experience or comprehension.

When government approaches to unemployment have failed as miserably as has been the case, in the last several presidencies one would expect a serious search for new approaches, much in the same manner that military experts analyzed the last vigorous round of the Israeli-Egyptian war to discover how new weapon developments had changed this type of fighting so drastically.

But no. The Labor Department's research and development program is small. It is spotty, fragmented, highly opinionated, divorced from reality—and almost completely ignored.

One major research division is dominated by economists from one school of thought. Economists in another shop look down their noses at what they consider the crude antiquated methods of their rivals. Still others scorn both schools. And all effectively bar experts other than economists from participation in their studies.

In one section there's a passion for making models.

From what this reporter can gather, therefore, it is probably just as well that top management pays little attention to the research studies. For, by all accounts, as suggested above, they are designed for a political and economic world which does not exist and would be impossible to institute short of an economic dictatorship.

The complaint of some of the researchers, nevertheless, is that unenlightened supervisors are forcing them to be overly concerned with practical issues.

As a result, the Labor Department doesn't know what it is doing or where it's headed. It continues with an aimless gathering of statistics of doubtful meaning and validity. It expands massive effort on studies of marginal use, heavily flavored with personal opinion.

Major areas of grave importance to the workingman are effectively ignored, or covered so routinely as to be useless.

The department gives little or no evidence, for example, that it is concerned—or even acutely aware—that there are, by immigration service estimates, 10 million illegal aliens in this country, believed to be displacing a million Americans from $10 billion a year in wages and absorbing unestimated sums in welfare and social security payments.

There is little or no emphasis on the simple basics of getting and holding jobs. And studies in one section of the country and another report the widespread training of men and women for jobs which do not exist and for skills already in oversupply in the labor market.

There's a negligible amount of work on what approaches the government could take to encourage over the long run the economic conditions which would boost employment sufficiently year in and out to cut employment to bearable limits.

It is not enough that this be left to generalities published by the President's Council of Economic Advisers. If not coordinated with an expansion of actual jobs, even successful training programs tend merely to replace one set of workers—the already trained—with a new set. Which leaves unemployment about where it was.

No more cheap foreign steel

One of the great issues of the 1960s was that of "cheap foreign steel" versus the high-priced American product.

Enjoying labor costs far below those of their American competitors and, especially in the case of Japan and West Germany, benefiting from modernized facilities built from the ground up after the devastation of World War II, foreign steelmakers began undercutting the American market both at home and abroad.

At the same time as domestic producers argued for higher tariffs and tougher "anti-dumping" legislation to stem the tide of cheap foreign steel, they were criticized for having let obsolescence overtake the industry. The solution, it was said, lay in out-innovating the foreigners rather than trying to block imports with tariff barriers which in the long run would only be turned against American products.

Also in the long run, it was predicted, steadily rising standards of living among foreign workers would eventually narrow the labor-cost gap.

Something like this seems to have come true in recent months.

While it is a complex situation and the worldwide business slump has much to do with it, imports of foreign steel in the first 10 months of 1975 were 18 per cent below those of the same period in 1974.

Thanks not only to the predicted higher wages for foreign steelworkers but also to steep boosts in the prices of fuel and scrap metal, the operating costs of steelmakers in Japan, Europe and the United States are now pretty much in the same range.

Japan's steelmaking costs are put at $270 a ton and those of Europe at approximately $290 a ton. The comparable figure for the U.S. industry is $275 to $280 a ton.

"Both European and Japanese competitors have experienced sharply increased costs for labor, raw materials and energy which have, in conjunction with the double devaluation of the dollar, raised the cost per ton of foreign steel delivered to about the same levels as American steel," says Thomas Graham, president of Jones & Laughlin, as quoted in the Wall Street Journal.

"The era of cheap foreign steel," he adds, "has gone the way of cheap foreign oil, never to return."

SANTIAGO (LENS)—How long can an authoritarian ruler preside over a policy of a brutal repression and ignore a plunging economy without his own supporters getting restless?

The recent resignation of Gen. Arellano, Chile's army chief of staff, marks the latest stage in a protracted struggle to dislodge the head of Chile's military Junta, President Pinochet.

Gen. Arellano has been identified for several months as the focus for military opposition to Gen. Pinochet. Although technically subordinate to the other three members of the junta, representing the navy, the air force and the police, Gen. Arellano commanded the ground forces that would decide a military showdown.

Last November, Pinochet, who recognized the danger, made an unsuccessful effort to get him to resign. Three weeks ago the 10 most senior members of the armed forces are reported to have asked for the president's resignation, probably on Gen. Arellano's instigation.

The rival has now gone, though whether he was dismissed, or resigned to rally opposition to Pinochet, remains unclear. Arellano is on no sense a liberal, and was an opponent of Chile's Marxist President Allende before Pinochet decided to join the 1973 coup. Pinochet was then a professional soldier of no fixed political convictions except a deep-rooted anti-Communism; Arellano, by contrast, is a highly political soldier.

Pinochet became chairman of the junta in 1973 because he was then the army's chief of staff. He tried to slap the lid back on the Pandora's box of political conflict and economic chaos, opened by Allende, with all the subtlety of a Sherman tank. Allende's supporters were herded into detention, and many of them killed and tortured. Opposition of all kinds was stamped out in a campaign of ruthless vigor run by the President's friend, Col. Manuel Contreras, the chief of Dina, Chile's secret police.

The head of the Roman Catholic church in Chile, Cardinal Silva, who remains the only public voice of opposition to the regime, estimates the total number of arrests since the coup at 95,000, although most of these have now been freed and some 12,000 people forced into exile.

On the economic front Pinochet's heavy-handed espousal of crude monetarism to control inflation has yielded painfully slow results—a 500 per cent annual inflation rate two years ago is down to about 300 per cent. But the cost has been a deep recession that has thrown some 16 per cent of the labor force in Santiago out of their jobs, caused acute shortages of essential goods, and brought many thousands to the brink of starvation.

The apolitical soldiers around Pinochet dislike failure above everything. The meager improvement in Chile's economy hardly justifies Pinochet's drastic measure. The attacks made on the Chilean government by other countries may, in some of his fellow-generals' eyes, have strengthened the president's argument that Chile is the target of a Communist propaganda campaign. But no country likes to feel wholly friendless; and even the United States has been privately urging Pinochet's removal over the past year.

Men like Arellano and the air force commander, Gen. Leigh, are not concerned about the use of torture in principle, but view its use against foreigners—such as the British doctor, Sheila Cassidy—as an unnecessary provocation to a Western power. The Cassidy affair was a pinprick to the Chilean government; but such pinpricks are beginning to make Pinochet bleed.

The president may yet survive by dealing with his military critics in much the same way as he has dealt with his civilian ones—by sweeping them from his path. But few military dictators get away with stamping their complete control on the men who brought them to power.

If Pinochet falls, the repression may ease. But Arellano may be too ambitious to contemplate sharing much power with civilian political leaders, even though many Chileans still cherish the hope that the armed forces will bring an end to an experiment as disastrous as the Marxist experiment that prompted it.

At least one politician, the moderate Christian Democratic ex-President Eduardo Frei, is waiting, Karamanlis-like, for the call. Frei, who has attacked the junta for its economic policy but not for its repression, may be acceptable to the armed forces. But there are all too few signs that they are prepared to give him the chance to heal Chile's wounds.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

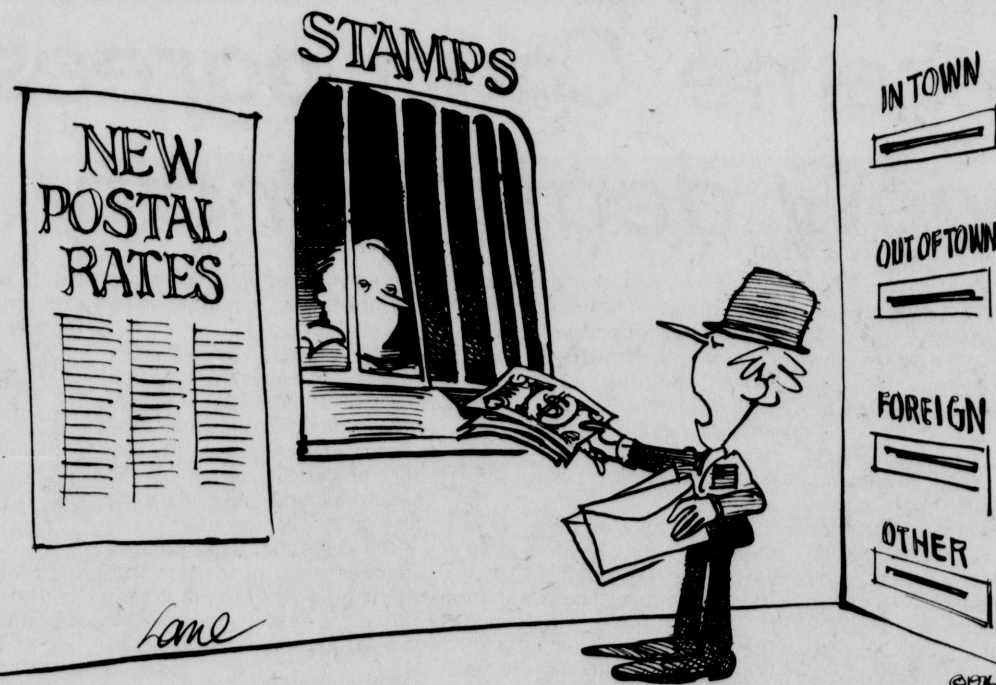

Three Dixon High School students performed with the All-State Chorus, Orchestra or Band Friday and Saturday in Peoria. The concert given by the state's best high-school musicians combined a chorus with an orchestra of 150 pieces and a band of 150 pieces. The concert is presented as a highlight of the annual meeting of the Illinois Music Education Association. The DHS students who participated are Sandy Slothower, chorus; Gary Boyd, band, and Ron Glass, orchestra.

The annual Mothers March of Dimes will be Tuesday when the Jay-Cettes along with other groups will canvass the city, house-to-house. Included in the drive, working on the South Side, will be members of the Civil Air Patrol and the Marine Corps League.

25 YEARS AGO

Dixon's fighting cagers lengthened their win streak to six straight as they walloped a futile Fulton five on Saturday, 71-35, before the home fans. It was a one-sided affair after the first quarter when the Purple and White jumped to a 22-6 lead and had little trouble holding the invaders at bay.

Executive officers of the Dixon Civic Music Association met Monday evening at the Loveland Community House with a New York Civic Music officer. Plans were made for the coming membership campaign, which will begin with a dinner March 12 and continue for a week. The teacher of music in the Dixon Public Schools was named campaign chairman. There are only two concerts remaining in this year's series.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor has filed suit on her first wedding anniversary for divorce from her sixth husband, John W. Ryan, a wealthy inventor who supervised creation of the Barbie Doll.

Miss Gabor, 56, filed suit Wednesday against Ryan, 49, in Santa Monica Superior Court.

She asked the court to order Ryan to pay $50,000 to complete construction of a night club in her Bel Air home. She said Ryan had promised her a gift of a night club at their home.

She also asked that Ryan, former head of the research division of Mattel Toys, be ordered to return her Rolls Royce in one piece. She contended he took the car, promising to enlarge, restore and improve it, but left the car dismantled.

The couple was married Jan. 21, 1975, in Las Vegas. It was her sixth marriage and his second.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will undergo his annual physical examination Saturday at the Naval Medical Center in nearby Bethesda, Md., says White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

Ford has said he will make a detailed report on his physical condition available for public release after the tests.

BOSTON (AP) — Rabbi Baruch Korff, the friend and vocal supporter of former President Richard M. Nixon, has been admitted to Massachusetts General Hospital, a hospital spokesman says.

Spokesman Martin Bander refused Wednesday to say why Korff was admitted.

Korff, a Rehoboth, Mass., resident, founded the President Nixon Justice Fund to raise money for the former president's legal expenses. In 1973, while Nixon still was in office, he set up the Ad Hoc Committee for Fairness to the President.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Veteran actor Hal Holbrook has filed suit against a suburban Buffalo man, claiming he is plagiarizing his copyright Mark Twain characterization.

Holbrook contended Wednesday that Michael E. Randall, 22, has copied lengthy portions of dialogue used in Holbrook's Twain act.

Randall, a waiter by trade when not performing, admitted he saw Holbrook's one-man act in Toronto in 1972 and it inspired him to do his own "Mark Twain — Man and Legend" show.

The Doctor Says:

Swallowing air is common cause of gas

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB— I am a tall, thin 26-year-old woman who would like an answer to my problem. I eat moderate-sized meals that are well-balanced. Shortly after eating I'm terribly bloated and burp excessively.

I end up taking Alka Seltzer but it doesn't help. Sometimes I'll even wake up from a sound sleep burping and hiccuping for a long while. Any pressure from clothing around my stomach increases my misery. Do you have any helpful suggestions?

DEAR READER— You are not alone. About one in 10 of the general population have problems with gas. And most people have a complete misconception about what causes it or what to do about it.

The excess gas you feel shortly after eating is usually not from the food you ate. The most common cause of gas is swallowing air. We all do it but in smaller amounts and in most people the gas passes noiselessly, undetected by all.

How do we know it is air? The gas in the digestive tract has been aspirated and analyzed and in most people it is oxygen and nitrogen or air, and those two gasses are not formed from any of the food you eat.

The air in the stomach and intestines may not cause any feeling of pressure until it is crowded by the meal you eat. That sudden full stomach feeling is caused by the gas you already had in the stomach before eating.

Now some people do have gas from fermentation of unabsorbed lactose, milk sugar, in the person who has this problem.

Certain foods, such as beans, are notorious as gas formers. By proper preparation you can avoid the tendency of beans to form gas.

People tend to swallow air when they drink things. Incidentally, drinking carbonated drinks releases considerable gas into the digestive system. Others swallow unconsciously and it can be increased with nervousness. The problem is that many doctors simply tell their patients to stop swallowing air. If you are unaware that you are doing this it is pretty hard to stop.

A handy solution is to hold a rubber eraser or pencil between your teeth. It is not so easy to swallow while you are holding such an object between your teeth. You'll soon notice how often you have been swallowing and can then, using an eraser or even a cigarette holder between the teeth, actually train yourself to stop swallowing.

Nervous tension is often a factor in swallowing excessively. Developing the ability to relax more helps solve that problem.

Incidentally, the reason some people have more trouble with gas than others is because they have spasms of the colon. The trapped gas causes pain.

Brinkmeier said he preferred Howlett over all other candidates for governor on the basis of superior administrative experience and personal integrity. "Howlett has been a lifelong administrator—in business, in the Navy, in federal, local and state government."

Thomas to give program

OREGON—Terry Thomas, a student from Oregon attending Northern Illinois University, will present a program on "Slavery-Its Economic Impact," for the Jan. 27 meeting of the Oregon Civil War Group. The meeting will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 8 p.m.

Slavery was one of the key issues of the Civil War. Lincoln's election as president came in part because of the stand he had taken against expansion of slavery into the territories. In the 1858 series of debates with Stephen A. Douglas, it was in the Freeport Debate that Lincoln destroyed Douglas's theory of Popular Sovereignty with regard to slavery in the territories.

Recent studies have indicated that slavery may not have been as unprofitable as other, older studies have maintained. Thomas will speak on the role of slavery in the economics of the nation both before the war and during it. Those who are interested in the middle period of American history are invited to attend the meeting. Refreshments will be served by Edward Gebhardt.

Disagreement over state fiscal picture

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Members of a special state Senate committee and officials in Gov. Daniel Walker's cabinet disagree sharply about whether the state is paying its bills on time.

Also in dispute is whether the state will end fiscal 1976 with a budget deficit.

Two Walker cabinet officials Thursday told the Senate Committee on Fiscal Accountability that no bills were being delayed intentionally.

"Many of the complaints result, unfortunately, from some human error," said Elliot S. Epstein, director of the Department of Finance.

Epstein and Leonard Schaeffer, director of the Bureau of the Budget, told the committee that except for these errors all bills were being paid on time.

"There is no policy on the part of anyone in state government to withhold payments after the due date," Epstein said.

The two acknowledged that an effort was being made not to pay bills before they are due. They said this was necessary to avoid a cash flow problem—something which occurs when the state temporarily does not have enough money to meet its obligations.

Several senators reported receiving numerous complaints from constituents that bills they submitted to the state had not been paid.

"Someone is willfully holding this money up," said Sen. Kenneth Course, D-Chicago.

Epstein contended that human error was inevitable in any large bureaucracy and that there always had been complaints about slow payment from the state—even when the state had enough money in the treasury to preclude any cash flow problems. "I have never previously seen such an outcry," said Sen. Thomas Hynes, D-Chicago. "It's clear we don't have all the answers and we're going to have to pursue this further."

The question of a possible budget deficit arose when Schaeffer submitted to the committee his bureau's latest estimates of revenue and spending for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30.

In the report, Schaeffer estimated the state would end the fiscal year with an available balance of $110 million.

He acknowledged, however, that this figure did not take into account spending during the so-called "lapse period," the three-month period after the end of a fiscal year during which the state continues to pay bills for goods and services received during that fiscal year.

Schaeffer said he could not estimate whether spending during this period would exceed the available balance of $110 million.

Several senators argued that a budget deficit would occur if lapse period spending exceeded the available balance at the end of the fiscal year. In such a situation, they said, fiscal 1977 revenues would be required to pay fiscal 1976 bills.

Schaeffer said he considered the concept of a budgetary balance "bizarre" and a poor indication of the true fiscal condition of the state. He said the available balance at the end of the fiscal year was a more significant measure of the state's economic health.

Complains to police, but is arrested as suspected attacker

CHICAGO (AP) — Police Thursday charged Carl Roy Thurmond, 21, of Chicago, with Wednesday's attempted rape of a South Side elementary school teacher in front of her first-grade class.

Authorities said Thurmond was arrested when he entered a police station to complain that police were circulating pictures of him in the vicinity of his home.

Thurmond later tried to hang himself in the police station lockup, police said, and was revived with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and put under constant surveillance.

High court into dispute between Walker, lawmakers

By BARRY HANSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Daniel Walker is on a collision course with the General Assembly over the future of the State Board of Elections and a brand new State Fair Board that hasn't even had a chance to start operating.

As usual, in cases involving constitutional clashes, the Illinois Supreme Court has been asked to step in and referee the dispute.

The court heard oral arguments Thursday in two separate cases, both involving challenges by Walker to laws that give the General Assembly certain powers to make appointments.

Both cases were decided by the same Circuit Court judge and the losers appealed to the Supreme Court. Walker's attorneys were victorious in one of the cases and lost the other.

The high court's decisions could break new ground in Illinois on the question of how far into the executive branch's sphere of authority the General Assembly can go constitutionally in the area of making appointments.

Such conflicts are "good and wholesome for our system," said one attorney for Walker who told the court Thursday that it was all part of the process of checks and balances between the branches of government.

Here are the cases involved: —The Board of Elections. Walker sued the board to block it from investigating a complaint that a Walker fundraising group violated campaign disclosure laws. In the suit, the governor said the board was unconstitutionally selected because the legislature had a hand in it. Judge J. Waldo Ackerman agreed with Walker, and the board appealed to the Supreme Court.

—The State Fair Board. Legislation creating a new 15-member board to take over control of the fair from the governor was enacted by the General Assembly last fall. Twelve members of the initial board have been appointed by legislative leaders, as provided in the law. Paul King, the fair manager appointed by Walker, quickly filed suit to test whether that provision violated the constitution. Ackerman ruled that it did not.

Underlying both suits is the ever-present element of politics. Membership on the Board of Elections is of prime concern because it has the authority to make quasi-judicial decisions on who may be on the ballot, who has violated campaign disclosure laws and handles the general administration of the election machinery in Illinois.

And in recent years under several governors, the state fair has become a political hot potato due mainly to charges of waste, corruption and mismanagement and the showcase nature of the annual agricultural event.

The court, however, is expected to focus on the legal nuts and bolts of the matter, examining the Constitution and the cases through the years that have interpreted it.

The Constitution says: "The General Assembly shall have no power to elect or appoint officers of the Executive Branch." The key, however, is interpretation of this phrase.

The two-year-old Board of Elections law provides that the governor picks the four members from eight nominees—two each from the four legislative leaders.

Ackerman, relying on the dissenting opinion in a 100-year-old case, ruled that since the governor is so limited in his choices for the board, it actually was the General Assembly doing the appointing.

The state fair case is somewhat different.

Under the law the initial fair board, of which four-fifths is appointed by legislative leaders, is gradually phased out until by 1978 the board consists of 10 members elected by representatives of agricultural groups and five picked by the governor.

In this case, Ackerman relied on the majority opinion in the same 100-year-old case and said that because the legislative appointments are only temporary, they are not "officers" of the executive branch and the constitution is not violated.

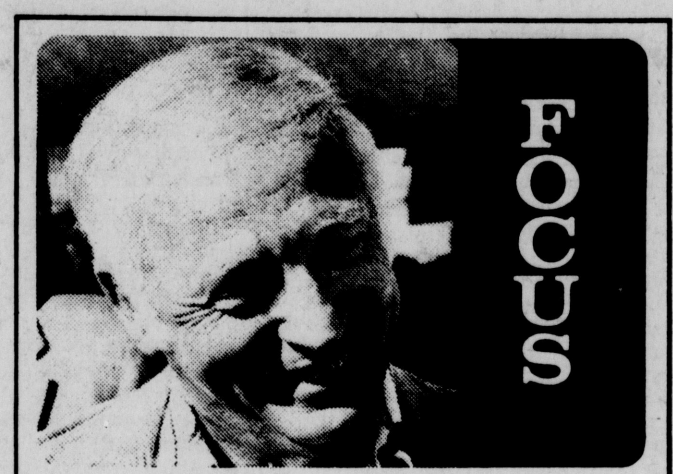

Judge Ackerman also said the legislative appointments do not violate the separation of powers doctrine which is contained in both the state and federal constitutions.

The Supreme Court will decide, probably within the next few weeks, whether the lower court judge's rulings were correct.

In the meantime, as the March 16 Illinois primary election nears, the Board of Elections is continuing to determine who should be on the ballot and making other election decisions.

And the State Fair Agency, under Paul King, continues to prepare for next year's fair.

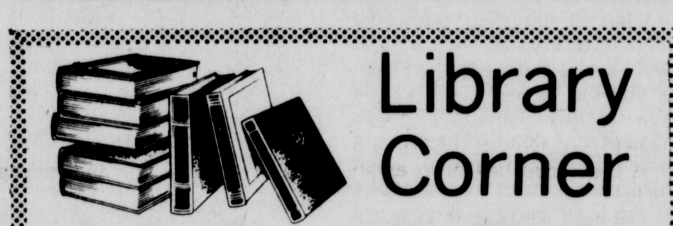

NFL Expanding

The National Football League will resume its expansion drive this season by adding two new teams. The teams will be called the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the Seattle Seahawks. They are the first additions to the NFL since Cincinnati joined the league in 1968. The man in this picture will be the coach of Tampa's Buccaneers. He reportedly was lured from the University of Southern California by a $750,000 five-year contract with many extras. As USC coach for the past 15 years, he led the Trojans to four national championships and five Rose Bowl wins.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is this coach of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — The Hessian soldiers came from Germany.

Mission program at First Baptist

The first session in the annual School of Missions at the First Baptist Church was held on Sunday, with Circle 4 in charge of the dinner.

Devotions were given by Mrs. Ruth Scholl, and the Men's Chorus provided special music. Mrs. J. H. Baker moderated a panel on local missions. The panel consisted of the Rev. A. J. Downing of the Second Baptist Church who is the head of the Senior Citizens Drop-In Center on Galena Avenue, Mrs. Ann Wilkinson representing the FISH program, and Mrs. Doris Feed the Children program. Each panel member told about their organizations, how they work, what they hope to accomplish and how they are financed. Questions were then taken from the audience.

The second session of this School of Missions will be held Sunday night, with Circle 3 in charge of the dinner arrangements. Meat, rolls and coffee will be furnished. Guests are to bring a dish to pass and their own table service. The program will feature Don Nestrick, Princeton, one of the over two dozen Great Rivers Region men who last spring went on a Mission Work Project in Nicaragua and El Salvador. There will be devotions and special music.

Mt. Morris School Board votes budget cuts

MT. MORRIS — The Mt. Morris Board of Education, faced with severe financial problems, met Wednesday night. The meeting was held in the high school's little theatre before a large crowd.

Superintendent David Turner reported that adequate funds existed to pay the January bills, but that if the state aid check did not arrive in February, tax anticipation warrants would be required to pay the expenses that month.

The board took several measures to pare the budget for next year. Including:

- Elimination of part-time English and P.E. instructors.
- Phase-out of the German program over a two-year period.
- Elimination of all extended contracts that pay teachers to teach during summer months.
- Elimination of one secretarial position.
- Chopping $2,000 off the athletic program by consolidation of freshmen and junior varsity games, quitting scouting and eliminating some assistant coaches.
- Reduction of new text book purchases.
- Reduction of $1,000 off administrative and board travel budget.
- Reduction of educational equipment budget by $10,000.
- Cutting janitorial supplies by $2,000.

The board called another special meeting on Feb. 3 to consider other cuts including principalship and the learning disability teacher.

In other board action, a study of the music department recommended that band and vocal music be put on a credit basis. Whether that credit is to be allowed for graduation has yet to be decided.

A report from the Planning Commission suggested that a facility for community recreation center be considered, if present financial troubles could be solved.

The board received a letter from Gary Montel, administrator of Pinecrest Manor, stating that, according to state and federal laws, senior citizens could participate in school hot-lunch programs. The board approved the concept for elementary school lunch rooms.

An Agricultural Advisory Committee was a set up. A superintendent evaluation committee was established.

Fitness program conducted at Y

A national program entitled, the "Y's Way to Fitness," is being conducted at the Dixon YMCA three days per week.

The Y's Way to Fitness Program is designed for adult men and women who have not been physically active for a long period of time. It is a long-range easy-going type of program and each participant has an exercise workout prescribed especially for them.

All participants undergo a physical fitness stress test which includes a muscular strength and endurance test, cardio-vascular endurance test, flexibility and body composition is determined.

After the testing a workout can be prescribed by using the heart rate as a guideline to condition the heart yet not work it to the point of exhaustion.

The Y's program is currently being conducted on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays in the YMCA pool from 5 to 5:30 p.m. Resting heart rates are recorded and then followed by 10 minutes of warm-up exercises. These exercises are easy to do and individuals work at their own pace. The warm-ups are followed by 15 to 20 minutes of lapswimming.

This is the cardiovascular training part of the program. During the course of the lap swim, swimmers monitor their own heart rate to make sure they are working at their prescribed pace.

The session is concluded by a cooling off period which is simply walking around the pool deck to gradually slow the heart rate and get it back to normal. Heart rates are also recorded after two minutes at rest.

Over a long period of time these recordings indicate the progress each individual is making. Individual progress is also determined by the semi-annual stress test given to each participant.

A gym program will begin Feb. 23, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 6:30 to 7 a.m. The program is run similar to the pool program, only the group will work out in a jogging circle doing flexibility exercises as each person walks.

The workouts will be followed by short session of volleyball or basketball.

The Y's fitness program is a cardiac training exercise class for men and women of all ages regardless of individual ability. Non swimmers are welcome into the program and are provided with basic swimming instruction.

A YMCA membership is required for continual participation in the program plus $2 per month, no additional charge for testing. Contact the Dixon YMCA Program Dept. for further information at 284-3312.

Osmer-Blau wed

ROCKFORD—Ms. Kimberly Anne Osmer, daughter of Mrs. Faye Osmer, Dixon, and the late Robert Osmer, and Robert Lee Blau, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blau, were married Jan. 10 in an afternoon ceremony at the Unitarian Church.

The Rev. Anthony Friess Perrino, pastor at the church, officiated during the nuptial. A taped recording of selected songs for the ceremony was played by Timothy Lyon, Dixon.

The couple wrote the ceremony and their vows, which stressed the importance of each person's individuality, as well as the couple's commitment to each other. A brief candle-lighting at the end of the ceremony symbolized this.

Escorted by the groom, the bride entered the sanctuary wearing a traditional floor-length gown of snowdrift satin trimmed with Venice lace appliques and blue ribbon flowers. The gown featured a high, rounded neckline, Dresden sleeves, an empire bodice and an A-line silhouette with a detachable cathedral sweep train. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, baby's breath, and bachelor buttons with a single white rose. The rose was given to the bride's mother at the end of the ceremony.

Witnesses to the marriage were Vickie Beckingham, Dixon, and Donald Heller, Madison, Wis. Thomas Lee Osmer, brother of the bride from Dixon, was the usher.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Unitarian Church Library. The wedding cake was made by Debra Osmer, sister-in-law of the bride from Amboy. Carol Berman, DeKalb, and Lisa Beckingham, Dixon, served cake and punch.

The newlyweds have been residing in Warren, Mich., since their wedding.

A 1972 graduate of Dixon High School and a '74 graduate of Sauk Valley College, the bride is presently a student at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb.

Mr. Blau is a 1965 North Miami High School graduate and a '68 graduate of Florida State University. He received his master's degree at Yale University in 1973.

A technique to blow drying hair

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
One popular beauty tool to be found in dormitories and home "beauty salons," the blow hair dryer, is often improperly used and may be initiating hair problems that are attributed to other causes.

Few people know how to use the dryers properly, claims Raymond Testa, director of the Caprice Academy of Jersey City, a training center in natural-motion hair styling for beauty operators.

"Hair can be ruined unless a blow dryer is used properly. If long hair is blown dry on a hot setting from the time it is wet until it is dry, it will simply get too much heat. Then, too, a brush is being drawn through the hair as the blower is directed on the hair and that combination can cause breakage and split ends, leaving the hair dried out and removing its natural oils and moisture."

The hair stylists he trains are told that there are two ways to blow-dry hair. The blower can be used on a low-heat setting or it can be used on a hot setting while the hair is wet if the heat is then decreased as the hair becomes almost dry.

While hair is wet, only brushes which can go through it easily should be used, he advises. A nylon twill brush with properly spaced bristles may be used. A wire wig brush is good while hair is wet, but when it is almost dry, a switch should be made to a natural bristle brush. The natural bristle brush should not be used while the hair is wet.

HAIRCUT for heavy-textured hair with a slight wave, left, was blown dry and a round, natural-bristle brush was used to place flared hair. At right, the hair has been permanent waved and blown dry back off the face and upward. As an option, the front area could be iron-curved for more control.

Professional people know those facts, he says, one reason certain beauty tools are labeled "for professional use only." Testa and the school's artistic director, Anthony De Sando, are consultants to Conair, a hair products line, and the two have designed many tools used in the trade.

"If tools are not understood, they can damage the hair. For example, the flow of air from a dryer must be in the same direction as the brush being used. Then, too, hair should not be blown dry every day as you are likely to do at home. Occasionally it should be dried naturally and shaped with the dryer in a few places."

"Most women use a curling iron after they blow their hair dry or possibly to retouch a style, but a curling iron should never be used on wet hair. For home use, a teflon-coated iron can prevent hair sticking and it will provide insulation so it does not get quite so hot as the professional iron. Other alternatives might be the mist or steam-type curling irons which can help put moisture back in the hair as you curl it," he advises.

Hair can be protected by frequent professional haircuts to snip the ends of the hair which receive the most damage. Low-alkaline protein, acid-balanced shampoos can help condition hair, but the hairdresser should be consulted, he contends.

"Remember, hairdressers want customers to look good all the time, not just when they leave the salon. The hairdresser is happy to recommend products that will keep her a walking advertisement looking good between salon visits."

It is a mistake to force hair into a style different from the one that was especially shaped to be dried with a blower. If other styles are wanted, the hair should be cut in layers or in graduated lengths from front to back, he suggests.

"Shorter hair styles are very much in," Testa maintains, predicting they will be for a long time. He sees the maximum fashionable length as "a little above shoulders," but it could go from chin to shoulders.

His natural-motion styles are action hairdos that can be accomplished a number of ways. A good haircut set with rollers, pins, curling irons or whatever can accomplish the motion which has swing in its style whether it is short and above the ears or longer.

Most readers think children aren't worth it all

Dear Readers: A few weeks ago, a young married couple wrote to say they were undecided as to whether or not to have a family. They asked me to solicit opinions from parents of young children as well as from older couples whose families were grown. "Was it worth it?" they wanted to know. "Were the rewards enough to make up for the grief?" The question, as I put it to my readers, was this: "If you had it to do over again, would you have children?"

Well, dear friends, the responses were staggering. Much to my surprise, 70 per cent of those who responded said "NO."

Here are some excerpts from the most fascinating (and disturbing) mail I've received in a long time.

From Fargo, N.D.: My husband and I were married eight years before we had our first child. Within four years we had three (The third one was a mistake.) Then I had my tubes tied and my husband had a vasectomy—just to make sure. We both agree our happiest years were before we had the kids. They have brought us a lot of heartache and very little pleasure. If we had it to do over again we'd have remained childless.—Rather Die Than Sign My Name

From Tampa, Fla.: I am 40, my husband is 45. We have two children under the age of eight. I was an attractive, fulfilled career woman before I had these kids. Now I'm an exhausted, nervous wreck who misses her job and sees very little of her husband. He's got a "friend," I'm sure, and I don't blame him. Our children took all the romance out of our marriage. I'm too tired for sex, conversation or anything else. Sign me—Too Late For Tears

From Chippewa Falls, Wis.: As the mother of six, I can tell you my life would have had no meaning without my children. Sure there are runny noses, chicken pox, arms in slings, fights, loads of laundry and sky-high grocery bills, but when I tuck them in at night, I thank God I've been so richly blessed.—Worth The Pain

From New York: I've lived 70 years, and I speak from experience, as a mother of five. Was it worth it? No. The early years were difficult. Illness, rebellion, lack of motivation (we called it shiftlessness and laziness in our day). One was seriously disturbed—in and out of mental hospitals. Another went the Gay Lib route. Two are now living in communes (we never hear from them). Another has gone loony with the help of a phony religious leader who should be in jail. Not one of our children has given us any pleasure. God knows we did our best, but we were failures as parents and they are failures as people.—Sad Story

From Chicago: Should you have children? It depends on what you want them for. Do you want a child who will be everything you weren't? Someone whose achievements you can brag about? Do you want company in your old age? Forget it. Have children only if you can give them unselfish love and expect nothing in return. Only then will you have a fighting chance of turning out emotionally healthy individuals who will appreciate and respect you—and themselves.—Been There

Dear Been There: There's still hope for mankind so long as there are human beings like you around. May your tribe increase.

Full Gospel Businessmen hold meeting

The Post House was filled to near capacity Saturday for a dinner meeting of the Sauk Valley Chapter of the Full Gospel Business Men.

Members include men from many occupations and many church denominations from Dixon, Sterling, Rock Falls and the surrounding area. Dinner meetings include both men and women and are held once a month. This was the first meeting to be held in Dixon but more will be held here in the future because of increasing local interest.

Herb Youngren led the group in singing followed by the speaker, the Rev. Walter Lamp, Rockford. The Rev. Lamp related the movement of the Holy Spirit in today's churches and the reality for today of the gifts explained in chapter twelve of First Corinthians in the Bible. Howard Duncan, vice president of the association, testified of his recent miraculous healing. He was anointed with oil and prayed for as is written in the scriptures in chapter five of James, verses fourteen and fifteen. At the end of the meeting several received prayers for their needs and several received healings.

The next dinner meeting will be held at the Sterling YWCA on Feb. 21. The program will feature the testimony of an airline pilot from North Carolina. The FGBM is a rapidly growing international organization and invites everyone to attend its functions. Clifford Schick is the local secretary and contact person.

OMS pastor to be in area for Evangelical Services

Rev. Robert (Bob) Taber, Regional Director and Evangelist for OMS International (a non-denominational missionary organization) will be guest speaker for the annual Evangelistic Services to be held at the Reynolds United Methodist Church, rural Ashton, on Jan. 27 through Feb. 1.

OMS International specializes in direct evangelism through the training of a national ministry, the establishment of an indigenous church. OMS outreach covers Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Taiwan, India, Indonesia, Greece, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, Haiti, and Spain.

Services will begin at 7 p.m., each night and special music will be provided by several area churches as follows: Jan. 27, Reynolds United Methodist Church; Jan. 28, Franklin Grove United Methodist Church; Jan. 29, Ashton United Methodist Church; Jan. 31, Steward United Methodist Church, and Feb. 1, Rochelle United Methodist Church, as well as The Reynolds Ambassadors.

The young people of the community are invited to a special youth night on Jan. 30, followed by an "afterglow and pizza party" in the church fellowship hall. Wayne Bays, guitarist and singer, will provide special music and inspiration.

Mrs. Lois Taber, wife of evangelist Bob Taber, along with the Iowa Outreach Women will present a warm and inspiring session on Jan. 31, at 9:30 a.m., at the Reynolds Methodist Church, entitled "Life in all its fullness" to the women of the community. From a background of experiences as wife of pastor and evangelist and as mother of three college children and one high school daughter, Mrs. Taber shares how to find the fulfillment and meaning in life by "being the woman of God you were created to be." A salad luncheon will follow the inspiration session.

The Rev. and Mrs. Taber's involvement in worldwide Christian outreach came as the result of a firsthand encounter in 1964 with the critical needs of the people of Haiti in the West Indies. Together with 22 other laymen, they participated in a witness crusade on this island and there had their hearts broken by the things that break the heart of God. For the past 12 years, they have an evangelistic ministry in Brazil, Ecuador, Colombia as well as sharing through speaking and music in retreats, conventions, prayer groups, home evangelistic meetings, clubs, and many church related activities. The public is invited to hear these two capable and challenging speakers.

FAITH WILL GIVE YOU PATIENCE FOR TODAY'S WORLD

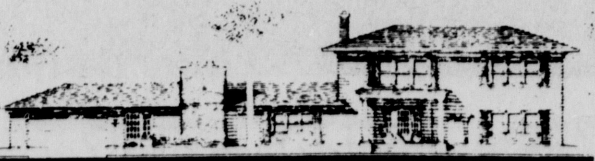

In this age of instant foods and virtually everything else, we often clamor for the immediate fulfillment of all our wishes as a matter of course. Patience has nearly become a lost art because we seem to have so little need of it in this push-button era. However, faith in God will not only help you regain your patience, but will let you know if the rapid results you have come to expect are really worthwhile attaining. There may be no such thing as instant success, but there is an instant faith which will direct you toward it in the proper manner. It's as near as your Church.

20 YEARS WITH CENTEL—Central Telephone Company employee Barbara Oliphant receives her 20-year service award pin and congratulations from Dolan P. Hume, Centel's division traffic manager. Mrs. Oliphant began her career in 1955 as an operator with what was then called the Dixon Home Telephone Company. In 1962, she was promoted to supervisor and in 1965 to assistant chief operator. Since 1974 she has served Centel as group supervisor-operator services. Mrs. Oliphant and her husband Max have two children.

SERVES CENTEL 15 YEARS—Dixon resident George Schroeder (right) is congratulated for his 15 years of service with Central Telephone Company of Illinois by Tom Durband, Centel's installation and maintenance supervisor in the Dixon area. Schroeder began with Centel in 1960 as a lineman. Since 1964 he has worked as combinationman and sub-foreman installing and repairing telephones.

RECOGNIZED FOR CENTEL SERVICE—Among those recognized at a Central Telephone Company service awards dinner was Robert Myers (right) who received his 15-year service pin from J. K. Hyatt, Dixon Plant superintendent for Centel. In 1960 Myers started with the company as a Central Office equipment repairman and in 1969 was made a supervisor in the same area. Since 1972 he has held various Plant Department supervisory responsibilities in his capacity as Dixon Plant supervisor. Myers is a native of Dixon and he and his wife Katryn have four children.

CENTEL HONORS HYATT—J. K. (Ken Hyatt) (center) and his wife Wilma were honored guests at a Central Telephone Company service awards banquet during which he received his 40-year service pin from W. T. Geary (left), Centel's vice president and division manager. Hyatt began his career as a postal telegraph messenger boy in Centel's serving area in Pekin. After that he held a variety of positions in the Plant Department until 1969 when he was named Dixon District manager in charge of the Dixon area operations. Hyatt served Centel in that capacity until 1975 when he was named Dixon Plant superintendent, the position he now holds.

Franklin Health Care Center is honored

SPRINGFIELD—The Franklin Grove Health Care Center has received "special recognition for quality care" from the Illinois Health Care Association, a state association of skilled nursing facilities, intermediate care facilities, sheltered care homes and homes for the aged.

The Franklin Grove Health Care Center successfully completed a comprehensive two-month peer review program aimed at determining the level of care and service in such areas as administration, nursing, dietary, housekeeping and various types of rehabilitative and therapeutic programs for its residents.

One phase of the program, called Circle of Concern, required the facility to distribute a percentage of questionnaires to their residents, the residents' families, and members of the clergy, community and medical profession. All individuals receiving the questionnaire were asked to rate the facility "excellent," "average" or "needs improvement" in 14 specific areas of services provided. The completed questionnaires were returned directly to Illinois Health Care Association for tabulation and review.

The second phase of the program was an on-site inspection of the facility by a survey team of practicing professionals from member facilities, qualified through training and education to objectively evaluate the facility's care program.

The third phase of the program was a review of the Illinois Department of Public Health survey records for the past year which determine compliance with state and federal regulations.

The fourth phase of the program required the facility to advertise in their local newspaper inviting any comments about the facility to be sent directly to the Illinois Health Care Association.

"Here's a fantastic winter vacation package deal to Haiti. It includes a quicky divorce!"

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-483: Harold R., aged 20, is the college senior who used some sales psychology on a cute coed classmate.

"Dr. Crane," he later exulted, "Jill has quit dating the football star and now we are engaged to be married after we graduate."

"But if you hadn't coached me in the proper sales psychology, I'd never have won her attention and then got her to figuratively sign on the dotted line!"

"For I was over-awed by my competition."

"Jill says the football star did give her a thrill at this being dated by a campus celebrity."

"But he was so preoccupied with talking about his own athletic achievements and clipping news accounts thereof, that he failed to pay much attention to her charms."

"Whereas, I paid her daily compliments and kept the focus of my attention on HER not on ME!"

"But when we marry later this summer, how can I be sure she will always love me and abhor the idea of divorce?"

Marriage Insurance
A compliment per day keeps divorce far, far away!

But there are "Five Laws For Complimenting," as outlined in the vital booklet below.

All engage couples, as well as married folks, should be adept in the use of all five laws!

For the divorce rate in America is now approximately 30 per cent, yet most of those couples who never dreamed they'd ever be feuding and fighting within a few years in a divorce court.

Happy marriage demands continual use of the following strategy, and if you are low in one item, build up a higher rating in another to offset it.

1) Pick quality matrimonial "merchandise" at the start. Cosmetic beauty is a good attention attracter, but your skin, hair, kissable mouth, dimples and even white teeth are merely the wrapping paper.

2) See if your matrimonial prospect is generously extroverted and thus is trying to "Plant roses where thistles grew before," as Lincoln tried to do.

Active membership in a church is an ideal form of insurance for happy marriage.

For when husband and wife are both active together in the same church, they have 50 times as great a chance of avoiding divorce!

3) Plan to have several children, at least three if possible, for they should be the major mutual interest of a married couple after the erotic glamor of the honeymoon and first year of marriage subsides.

Besides, children extrovert you into making your city better via a YMCA, local playgrounds, public swimming pools, Boy and Girl Scouts, school athletics, chorus, band, etc.

Many a dad-and-son attachment grows richer when dad attends ball games where his son is a player.

4) Men, discuss your business problems with your wives for they usually relish being your partner in all things.

And women often can offer superb ideas, since they have more of the usual consumer outlook.

5) Pay verbal compliments and you wives need to stress business problems with your wives for they usually relish being your partner in all things.

So send for the "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents for it is basic to HAPPY homes!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

State, Elan One settle dispute

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The legal controversy between the state of Illinois and a child care firm in Maine which treated 11 Illinois wards last year has been settled, state officials say.

Operators of the Elan One child care program had been accused by Illinois officials last July of mistreating Illinois wards who were housed there.

As part of a settlement announced Wednesday, state officials said two teen-agers from Illinois who are still at Elan One facilities would be returned to Illinois within a week to 10 days.

They said Elan One officials had dropped a $10 million lawsuit against the state for defamation of character which had been filed after statements made last summer by Mary Lee Leahy, director of the Department of Children and Family Services.

Illinois officials agreed in return to drop a lawsuit against Elan in which $788,000 in damages had been sought for violation of the civil rights of 11 wards of the state attending the Maine center.

Mrs. Leahy announced July 31 that she was removing the 11 Illinois wards from Elan One.

She said a team of Illinois investigators had discovered numerous examples of abuse at the center, including beatings, use of straitjackets, forced ditch digging and dumping of garbage over the heads of children who needed discipline.

Elan officials denied the allegations and produced letters from officials of child welfare agencies in other states who contended they could not find evidence to support the Illinois findings.

While most of the Illinois wards were returned without incident to Illinois, two teen-age youths went back to the Maine facility.

At the time Illinois officials said the center had brainwashed two youths.

"We feel we've adequately cleared ourselves," Elan One therapeutic director Joseph J. Ricci said Wednesday night.

"It's been good publicity for us. None of them found anything that remotely resembled the charges, Ricci said.

In a joint statement Elan and the state said the withdrawal of the lawsuits "does not imply that either party has changed its views and beliefs concerning the other." The statement, though, amounted in part to a retraction of Illinois' earlier charges, said Ricci.

"Mary Leahy threw at us statements that we were bestial and abusive and now she settles and says she recognizes our sincere intent to provide care for children," he said.

"We look at that as a retraction—as close as it can come, considering the political climate."

Recognition of the amount of time and money that would be involved in the litigation and concern for the privacy of the young people involved were bases for Elan's decision to settle, he said.

Ricci said one of the Illinois wards has been "ambivalent" about staying there, and when asked during the settlement discussions, said he wants to leave.

Lemon, Roberts selected to Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — It would be nice to report that Bob Lemon had lived out a boyhood dream when he was elected along with Robin Roberts to the baseball Hall of Fame.

But it's just not so. The truth of the matter is that baseball occupied a back seat with Lemon when he was growing up in San Bernardino, Calif.

"I wanted to run a gas station," said Lemon, who instead won 207 games in a 13 seasons with the Cleveland Indians. "What's wrong with a gas station?" he asked. "Where do you go every day? It beats a bar. After I'm through with baseball, I think I'll go back to pumping gas."

Baseball, however, isn't quite through with Lemon and Roberts. The two pitchers have an Aug. 9 date in Cooperstown, N.Y. where they will be inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Both were elected easily in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. With 388 ballots returned, 75 per cent or 291 votes were required for election. Roberts received 337 and Lemon 305. The late Gil Hodges was third with 233 votes, 58 short of election.

Between them, Roberts and Lemon won nearly 500 major league games and enjoyed 13 seasons in which they won 20 or more games. Roberts, pitching for the Philadelphia Phillies, Baltimore Orioles, Houston Astros and Chicago Cubs won 286 games in 19 seasons and had six straight 20-victory seasons. Lemon had 207 victories including a stretch of seven 20-win seasons in nine years, all with the Cleveland Indians.

Both pitchers nearly made it

At Lancaster Gymnasium Dukes nip Rockets

By TED TRULOCK JR
Telegraph Sports Writer

The Dixon Dukes varsity wrestlers upset the Rock Falls Rockets at Lancaster Gymnasium Thursday night 25-22.

The Dukes win was highlighted with victories by John Green, Jim Magnafici, Dan Frost and Randy Hazelwood.

The Rock Falls squad was weakened when two wrestlers failed to make weight at 112 and 132. Coach Mike Healy termed this as a "key factor" in his team's loss.

Andy Allen suffered an 8-4 defeat in the 98-pound match with Mario Campos. Campos has been a tough opponent for Allen and it was his second win against him this season.

Jim Magnafici picked up an 8-4 decision over Randy Helms in the 119 match. Coach Ron Semetis termed Magnafici's take downs as "beautiful" and they proved to be the margin of victory.

John Green easily downed Larry Albright 9-1 scoring five points in the second period to take a commanding lead.

Gary Magnafici scored a forfeit win at 132 and Dan Frost blanked John Harrison with two take downs and an escape for a 5-0 win.

Tim Fiorini won a close 8-6 decision for the Rockets as he came from behind to defeat Steve Lybarger. Fiorini scored six points in the third period.

Rory Fullmer, the Rockets 155 pound entry, defeated Mike McDonald 5-0 scoring with two takedowns and an escape.

Randy Hazelwood won for Dixon in the 167 pound bout that proved to be a real "crowd pleaser." Hazelwood rallied with five points in the final period for a narrow 11-9 win.

Bryan Henson defeated Dixon's Brian Fane in the 185 match 8-1 scoring six points in the second period after a scoreless opening round.

Dixon forfeited the heavyweight decision to Pat McDonnell and the six points ended the Rockets scoring as Dixon hung on for the 25-22 win.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, Jan. 23, the 23rd day of 1976. There are 343 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1973, President Richard Nixon announced an accord in the Vietnam war, with a cease-fire to begin on Jan. 27.

On this date: In 1542, the English King, Henry VIII, took the title of King of Ireland.

In 1920, the Dutch refused to surrender the refugee, ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, to the Allies for punishment as a war criminal.

In 1943, in World War II, British troops entered the North African city of Tripoli.

In 1932, Franklin Roosevelt announced he was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In 1974, Israel moved tanks and troops from the West Bank of the Suez Canal in its first step of military disengagement with Egypt.

Ten years ago: A lunar New Year cease-fire in Vietnam expired and fighting was resumed with U.S. Marine artillery opening up one minute after midnight.

Five years ago: The United States rushed supplies to Cambodia to bolster the Phnom Penh airport defenses after the airport had been badly damaged by an enemy attack.

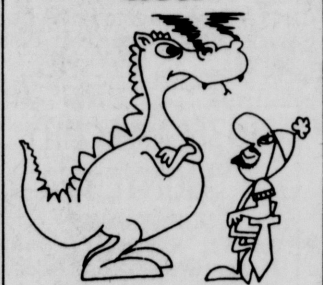

One year ago: The United States disclosed it would furnish Israel with short-range Lance missiles capable of carrying nuclear warheads.

Today's birthdays: Former Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg is 80. French actress Jeanne Moreau is 48.

Thought for today: No people respond more spontaneously to fair play. If you treat Americans well, they always want to treat you better — Sir Winston Churchill, 1874-1965.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, a discouraged General George Washington wrote in a letter from his Cambridge, Mass., headquarters: "I have often thought how much happier I should have been if, instead of accepting a command under such circumstances, I had taken my musket upon my shoulder and entered the ranks."

Coping with your income tax—4

Tax break for some who bought homes

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the fourth in a series of five articles entitled "Coping With Your Income Tax." They were written to help taxpayers prepare their 1975 tax returns.

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)— One of the economy-boosting gimmicks of the 1975 tax program was a tax credit windfall of up to $2,000 for buyers of many new homes.

Although government agencies report the tax break was an apparent flop as far as increasing new home sales—its intended purpose—the people who did buy new homes may be entitled to take the credit on their 1975 tax returns.

The credit was the idea of Senate Democrats and was opposed by President Ford, even though he accepted it as part of the overall tax reduction package for 1975. It is unlikely to be renewed for 1976, however.

The credit is equal to 5 per cent of the purchase price of a new home up to a maximum of $2,000 if the following conditions were met:

—The new home must have been built or under construction before March 26, 1975.

—It must have been acquired and occupied after March 12, 1975.

—The price paid must have been the lowest asked by the seller since Feb. 28, 1975.

The house didn't have to be occupied during 1975, but a binding purchase contract must have been entered into before Jan. 1, 1976, in order to qualify.

If the taxpayer acquired the home in 1975, but does not occupy it until 1976, then the credit is allowable on his of her tax return for 1976, not 1975.

The home must be the taxpayer's principal place of residence.

from the sale of his previous home, this gain must be subtracted from the purchase price of the new home before the 5 per cent credit is computed.

Another change in the tax laws affecting buyers of homes is an extension of the time allowed to buy a new home in order to defer a tax on any gain in the sale of the old home.

The period has been increased to two years, either before or after the sale of the old home, instead of 18 months, as before. But the new extension applies only to sales of homes after Dec. 31, 1974.

The time period for a person to start building a new home has been increased from one year to 18 months after sale of the old home, with another two years allowed for occupancy of the built home, rather than 18 months as before.

In all cases, the home must be the principal place of residence for the taxpayer.

House trailers and house boats can qualify if they are the principal place of residence.

When the tax legislation went into effect, the price requirement was that the price be the lowest ever. But Congress amended this after sellers complained the restriction was unrealistic because of the high inflation of the past few years.

Taxpayers claiming the credit must use the long 1040 form. In addition, they must attach a separate form provided by IRS and a certificate from the seller certifying that the home met the date and price requirements.

Since there is an obvious potential for fraud in this area, the tax legislation provides for both civil and criminal penalties against a seller who provides fraudulent information.

The buyer is still entitled to the credit even if fraud was committed by the seller.

The estimated cost to the government of the credit is $600 million.

One important note: If the homebuyer has realized a gain

Rock group, 'The Who,' decides to play only super arenas

By STEPHEN FORD
NEW YORK (NEA)— It doesn't take the most astute observer of Washington or Hollywood to realize politicians and movie stars are hardly the only social forces guilty of faulty memories and ephemeral promises.

Rock's gilt-edged legends can vacillate with an elan any pro fullback would be proud to duplicate on an open field. Noble as Bob Dylan's initial intent was to play small bistros in his low-key Rolling Thunder Revue, it snowballed into a tour de force, then an apocalypse. It ended with the flannel shirt and jeans audience totally buried under the lust and lucre of the beautiful people who always hijack the hustings' social heroes.

Well, to make a big compromise small, The Who has re-evaluated its original plans to appear only in intimate venues seating less than 50,000 hardcore fans, and will instead go the super star route. They've inserted a few extra dates at mammoth arenas whose seating accommodations are easily matched by their profit potential. The Who will play Pasadena's 100,000-capacity Rose Bowl stadium in March. The ticket scalpers will be happy, West Coast ingenues will be happy and The Who will be happy. And the fans? Oh yes, them.

Bottom Line: On the subject of beautiful people, Bianca Jagger, wife of the Rolling Stones' crown jewel, makes her movie debut later this year in a nude scene. Bianca's stand-in has fomented some stir, however, with the disclosure that she will appear in an nature scenes from the rear since the film's producers felt there wasn't enough of the svelte Mrs. Jagger's derriere to be desired. . . . Frankie & Johnny: Sinatra and Dimples Denver team for their third time when they highlight a benefit concert next month for Israel.

Nashville Etudes: The Grand Ole Opry has invaded France's capital aided by Country & Western's staggering popularity surge there recently. Aznavour may knock 'em dead across the Channel and in the States but Gaullist hearts now belong to Buck Owens and an array of Nashville constellations soon to appear across the Paris skies.

HeeHaw Diplomacy: C&W luminary Roy Clark takes his corny humor and musical expertise on a tour of the Soviet Union later this month. Clark is the first County artist ever invited to tour Russia. . . . Will someone please remind Stevie Wonder about that double album he was to release last October.

The ritualistic thrill of a lad's first shave was long ago surpassed by the accomplishment of his first million bucks—at least if he's wordily enough to distinguish the difference between an E and A string. The pubescent appeal of the Bay City Rollers prompted more than a few ancient rock musicians into thoughts of retirement but now even the Rollers are eligible for Medicare. Ente

"The Gang," a British five-man ensemble whose oldest member is 15 years old. Their single, "Run, Run, Run," is all over Europe, they're featured in several continental publications and have guested on a few television shows. Perhaps the only nice thing about this is, if you can't deal with the present man in charge, wait five minutes. . . .

Less than two years ago, Stephanie Mills, now the primary reason for the three-week wait for tickets to Broadway's phenomenal "Wiz," was a native and whispering young lady, rehearsing her role as "Dorothy" with an excitement reserved for the young.

STEPHANIE MILLS and mentor Diana Ross chat backstage after Stephanie's performance in "The Wiz," now approaching its second dynamic year on Broadway.

Now 17 years old, Stephanie is a STAR, the naive replaced by a star's temperament. She has fulfilled a fantasy at an age when most of us are just recognizing our fantasies. Besides headlining a spectacularly successful Broadway play, Stephanie has just finished an album for Motown and earned the esteem of lyricist Hal David and melody wizard Burt Bacharach, who reconciled their differences last year out of mutual admiration for Stephanie. The product of this reconciliation is "For the First Time," her premiere on the Motown label.

The diminutive Stephanie (barely five feet tall even with high heels on), is no child any more. She now sports $200 white leather boots, a concession to her aunt who talked her out of the $400 pair. She orders her lunch carefully and does not hesitate to inform the waiter if the order is not to her specifications. She has purchased an elegant abode for her parents in Mt. Vernon. In short, the shy lass of pre-Wiz days has escaped her cocoon, something her brother and manager, Joey Mills can testify to, since he's kept on his toes by her often candid manner.

Stephanie complains that fellow students constantly accost her at her new high school and she has little time for socializing. "I really miss my school friends," she says. "I have to arrange parties just to see them. Even buying a pair of jeans is a big thing. I have to plan it far ahead so that I have time."

Her other interests have felt the effects of her hectic schedule. "I love television but I never get to see it. I run from school, to the theater, sometimes rehearse, then do the show, drive home, then I'm up early the next day and back to school.

"I could see leaving The Wiz in a few months, just to do something else. I recite the same lines every night, like I'm not even there, just going through the moves. I think about too many other things when I'm on stage."

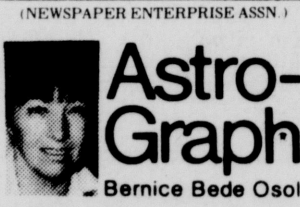

"I don't want to do real acting, y'know, the Hollywood thing. I used to," she says then adds, "But I'm a singer. I just want to do musicals."

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone extremely fond of you is likely to support your position against all odds today. Try to be equally loyal to her.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You feel very strongly about your opinions today. You are probably right. Since you will prevail, be compassionate with others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't be intimidated by tasks that may have seemed insurmountable in the past. Your reservoir of strength makes you equal to them today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be especially solicitous of those under your wing today. They'll be grateful. You'll be a better person because of it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Once you sense your basic inner strength, you'll be able to handle any situation, even though others may think you're a pushover.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You require mental challenge to satisfy your ego today. Unless you're intellectually fulfilled, you won't relax.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Reason must not give way to emotion today in material affairs. You understand balance better than anyone. Remember this.

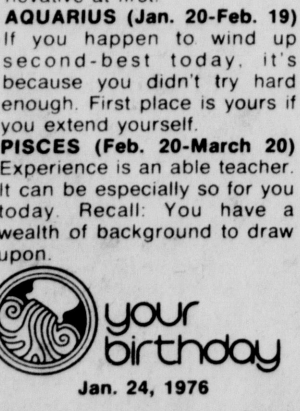

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're apt to believe you should be leading the parade today, and why shouldn't you? Those in front are those who are confident of their abilities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Quiet places will be to your liking today. Everyone needs a respite at times. Solitude now beckons to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be receptive to new ideas today. Don't turn a deaf ear to unheralded projects, even though they may seem too innovative at first.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you happen to wind up second-best today, it's because you didn't try hard enough. First place is yours if you extend yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Experience is an able teacher. It can be especially so for you today. Recall: You have a wealth of background to draw upon.

You will be much more inclined to assert yourself this coming year. Where you have been reticent in the past you will now take charge — and you should.

A short course in college economics

In just eight years, experts predict the average cost of sending today's 10-year-old to a four-year state university will exceed $30,000.

And at an annual inflation rate of 7%, the cost of sending a child to college can double every ten years.

How do you make sure the money's ready when your child's ready for college? Life insurance from Country Life helps many families.

Call your Country Companies agent. He knows the ways life insurance can help you get through college economics.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Why does Lucy act so dumb on her show? And why don't you all show I Love Lucy any more. Is it gone off the air? One more question. How old is Lucy? Is her hair really red?—SHERRON OWENS, Mobile, Ala.

Lucy's dumbness is, of course, a comic ploy. If she acted normally, it wouldn't be funny. The show is long gone and what you are seeing are reruns. One more answer. Lucy is 64 and her hair is really red, although it has some help in the redness department from cosmetic aids.

DEAR DICK: Settle an argument for us. I say Vicki Lawrence's husband wrote the song, "The Night the Lights Went Out in Georgia," for Cher Bono to sing. But Sonny turned it down, saying it was detrimental to the south. My girl friend says Bobby "Boris" Pickett wrote it and never offered it to Cher. Who's right?—J.A.K., Greenfield, Ind.

Your version is more accurate than your friend's. The part about Sonny and Cher is right on the button, but it wasn't Vicki Lawrence's husband who wrote it, it was her ex-husband, Bobby Russell.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me in what year the movie, "For Heaven's Sake," starring Harold Lloyd, was first shown. Also, is Harold Lloyd still living?—VERNON W. OTT, Eutawville, S.C.

That film came out in 1926 and, no, Harold Lloyd is no longer living.

DEAR DICK: Has the lead-in music for the TV series, Movin' On, ever been recorded?—A. BRIGGS, Lodi, Calif.

Yes. Merle Haggard wrote it and recorded it himself and you should be able to find it in your local stores.

DEAR DICK: Our granddaughter was here a few weeks ago and was very curious about something. On The Little House On the Prairie, what is the name of Carrie's doll?—MRS. HAROLD LA LONE, Isabella, Mo.

The doll's name is Charlotte. DEAR DICK: Did James MacArthur play Clay-Boy in the movie, "Spencer's Mountain"?—SYLVIA MAY, Jackson, Ala.

Yes. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Tony and Freddy get together

Freddie Prinze and Tony Orlando will be "looking good" together.

Orlando (of TV's "Tony Orlando and Dawn" series), considered by many to be Prinze's look-alike, guest-stars as just that in "The Big Brush-off" on NBC-TV's "Chico and the Man" Wednesday, Jan. 28 (8-8:30 p.m.). The series moves to this new day and time period on this date.

As the storyline unfolds, Chico (Prinze) falls in love with Ed's (Jack Albertson) accountant, Maria Esteban (Irene De Bari), but is unable to win her heart because he looks, walks and talks like her former fiance, Tomas Garcia (Orlando).

Orlando says, "What people really see is the mustache and dark hair. Many times, when I'm going through an airport, people say, 'Hey Chico,' and I say 'Looking good.'"

The same thing happens to Prinze. People say, "Tony, I love your show. How are the girls (Dawn)?"

"Quite often," says Tony, "I don't tell them I'm not Freddie because I don't want to ruin it for them. They may not like Tony Orlando. They may love Freddie Prinze — so I try to be as gentlemanly and as cordial as I can.

"If they go home and tell everyone, 'I saw Freddie Prinze at the airport. That's fine.'"
